

We are not thankful for all the disruption Black Lives Matter has caused across the country over a very small percentage of actual cases of police brutality against Blacks while all other races suffer many more incidents at the hands of the police.

There are more Black on Black murders in this country than anything to do with the police along with many crimes committed by Blacks, more so than other racial groups.

If "Black Lives Really Do Matter", then the root cause of the problem starts with changing the behaviors and attitudes of the people within the Black communities themselves.

In every incident the public has witnessed when police are involved with a member of the Black community, the choices and decisions by the suspect themselves have resulted in undesired consequences, including death. The same thing happens to people of other races. But the process starts with the uncooperative suspect, not the police. Resisting arrest is a punishable crime in itself. If you are suspected of doing wrong and the police order you to do something, DO IT and stop resisting arrest and acting like you are guilty! You are presumed innocent until proven guilty by a group of your peers in a jury at a trial. If you are innocent, you have nothing to fear.

If you are guilty of committing a crime, you are responsible for your own behavior and actions, not the police nor anyone else. You made the choices and decisions that led to the commission of a crime, no one else. So stop blaming everyone else when you are the one at fault!

All Live Matter in America, not just one race over another. There is no systematic racism or racist plot to kill Black people in America, especially by police. That is an emotionally charged exaggeration of epic proportions by Blacks deflecting from the truth using a trumped-up excuse to get out of trouble for their own poor choices, their own poor decisions and their own poor unacceptable behavior. It's about time for Blacks in America to grow up and take responsibility for themselves. That's how it works for the rest of us! Why should Blacks be any different than everyone else? That's right, the answer is Blacks have no right to demand to be treated differently than anyone else.

To the Black community in America at large: start making better choices and decisions along with behaving responsibly as productive members of the American society and watch how things magically change to reveal that Blacks are treated just like everyone else in America.
